Teacher Accused Of "Nazi Tactics"

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal Catholic School Commission will launch a full-scale investigation next week into the activities of an elementary school instructor who organized his students along Nazi army lines and told them Adolf Hitler had qualities comparable to those of Jesus Christ.

Jean-Marie Mathieu, the commission's director of teaching, said the probe will include interviews with students and their parents as well as the teacher, Brother Rene Lahaye, and his principal, Brother Hector Asselin.

"We intend to make a complete investigation," Mr. Mathieu said in an interview.

He made the statement after the French language daily newspaper Montreal La Presse unveiled the bizarre story of Brother Lahaye's seminar on leadership qualities.

The course, for Grade 1 students at the French-language La Menais school in north-end Montreal, was conducted in a classroom replete with visual symbols of the two men and the two philosophies. The 23-year-old Brother Lahaye apparently was trying to impress on his students:

DISPLAYED PICTURES

RACIAL STRIFE AT-A-GLANCE

NEW YORK (AP)—People of all races and creeds continue to protest events in Alabama.

Meetings, marches and demonstrations were planned for the weekend in the wake of the death Thursday night of a 38-year-old Boston minister, Rev. James Ray, after a beating in the racially-troubled town of Selma.

Thousands of persons in the United States and Canada paid tribute to Rev. Ray Friday.

Some 2,000 people marched before the U.S. consulate in Toronto, while 25 young people sat in at the base of the Liberty Bell in Independence Hall, Philadelphia.

In Chicago, Negroes and whites paraded through downtown streets carrying a coffin with the sign, "God Go South."

New York's Francis Cardinal Spellman donated $10,000 to a Selma hospital for a memorial to perpetuate Ray's memory.

The district council of the Greater New York and New Jersey Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher's Union, AFL-CIO, sent $1,000 to Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., to support civil rights leader, to be used for medical supplies.

Canada's Hopes Demolished By Sweden's 6-4 Victory

TAMPERE, Finland (CP)—Only Canada has won more titles today by virtue of its 3-1 victory over Czechoslovakia and Sweden's 6-4 defeat of Canada.

The Czechs and the Canadians, who play Russia Sunday, were the last teams to lose their chance of defending the defending champions.

Sweden climbed into third place ahead of Canada but lost its title chances earlier in a 5-3 loss to Russia and a 2-2 tie with Finland.

Standing of the leaders:

Team	W	L	T	F	P
Russia	6	0	0	47	12
Czechoslovakia	5	1	0	40	8
Sweden	4	1	1	31	14
Canada	4	2	0	27	17

Canada started out well against Sweden and the two teams were locked in a 1-1 tie at the end of the first period.

The Swedes found the range in the second period and shot into a 5-2 lead, which a strong Canadian rally in the third period could not overcome.

Counting both world and Olympic competition, it was the fifth title for the Russians since they burst upon the hockey scene in 1954. They won the world title in 1954 and the Olympics in 1956.

Sunday's schedule (times EST):

Norway vs. United States, 4 a.m.
Sweden vs. Czechoslovakia, 7 a.m.
Russia vs. Canada, 10:30 a.m.

Wagner Hints Letter Phoney Reveals Rivard "Privileged"

MONTREAL (CP)—A dubious love letter and disclosure that he was a "trustworthy" prisoner have surrounded Lucien Rivard's escape with more notoriety.

"I love you. Forgive me," Rivard's wife Marie wrote a letter she said she received from the suspected narcotics smuggler.

Mrs. Rivard said in a brief interview Friday the envelope was postmarked Vancouver and dated March 6, five days after her husband escaped from the provincial Bordeaux Jail in Montreal.

"The whole matter is fishy," Claude Wagner, Quebec attorney-general, said in Quebec City. "It's a move to put police on the wrong track."

Sub-Inspector Jean Gagnon of the provincial police said investigators believe Rivard wrote the letter but that it was really mailed from Vancouver, this was done by somebody else.

"Blood bomber" David Cowlishaw said in Vancouver later Friday that a former jailmate of Rivard told him the town in which the escapee is hiding. Cowlishaw said he refused to tell the name of the town to the RCMP.

The RCMP refused to comment on his statement.

He said the former convict, "a man I have no reason to distrust and believe implicitly," approached him with a request from Rivard to "get Ottawa off my back" while he tried to prove his innocence.

Mr. Cowlishaw heads the Underdog organization and is best known for throwing a carton of cow's blood into the House of Commons to publicize the case of one "underdog."

Revived Man Dies Later

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (CP)—George Rainforth, 40, described by a doctor as "scientifically dead" for 15 minutes before being revived for several hours, died Friday night.

He had been in critical condition after being pulled from an ice-clogged creek.

Dr. Sam Huang, a state member at Union Hospital, said when Mr. Rainforth, foreman of the city's filtration plant, was brought to hospital he had no respiration or heart beat and was "scientifically dead."

Mr. Rainforth apparently fell into the creek while completing a maintenance job.

The doctor said he applied artificial respiration and heart massage, and within 15 minutes the heart began to beat again.

"His body was ice cold. His lungs were filled with dirty water and filth," Dr. Huang said.

Dr. J. D. Keane, mayor of Swift Current and Mr. Rainforth's personal physician, confirmed today Mr. Rainforth died during the night.

UNIQUE LABOR GANG BUILDS AIRPORT
Hard on Drunk Drivers

HELSINKI (Reuters)—When the Finns tell you their airport here was built with the help of what was probably the most unique labor gang in the world, they're not kidding: Much of the construction was done by drunk drivers.

The workmen, of course, weren't drunk at the time. But they were paying one of the penalties for getting caught while driving on too much drink.

Finland has some of the toughest drunk driving laws in Europe.

A conviction calls for a maximum sentence of three years in prison. If homicide is involved, it can bring a sentence of eight years.

But justice, at least for first offenders, generally is not so severe. A first offender is usually given a four-to-five-month sentence and loses his license for two or three years.

Most motorists convicted of drunk driving serve their time in special labor camps, helping to build or improve the country's airports.

It's almost impossible to beat line, a drunk driving rap under the present law. The police can make a blood test compulsory. And there is no statutory limit to the amount of alcohol that must be found in the blood.

The police only need to prove that they found a trace to win their case.

In addition, the police can order a suspect to undergo a series of clinical tests that include such time-honored traps as picking up matches from the floor, counting backwards by sevens and walking a white line.

AID FOR FELLOW HUMAN

One of the many facets of Red Cross activities in the community is the supplying of blood for transfusions in hospitals. Miss Kayo Ouchi is the cheerful recipient here. This is Red Cross month when the organization is conducting its annual campaign for funds to further its work. Sunday, March 14 marks Red Cross day.

Senators Clash Over Policies Dealing With Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said today the United States has "blown the trumpet of retreat too long" in dealings with Russia and that it is time to take a firm stand against the Communists.

Dirksen made the statement on a television-radio program taped with Senator Jack Miller (Rep. Iowa), for broadcast in the Midwest. It follows criticism leveled at him Friday night by Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.) for selling for a "no comment-no war" policy toward the Soviet Union.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, in a speech at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, criticized what he called "flag-waving professional patriots" and said they are making it difficult to reach any accommodation with Russia.

Fulbright disputed the contention of Dirksen and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan at a press conference recently that the United States is always giving in and getting nothing in return in its dealings with Russia.

"Russia backed down," Fulbright said.

Noting that the Russians backed down in Iran in 1946, in the Berlin blockade in 1948 and in Cuba in 1962, Fulbright said: "The fact of the matter is that we have had some notable successes—or victories, if you like—in the cold war. Hard as it is to believe, the Russians may actually have had the feeling of having failed sometimes themselves."

For her back interest a tall peplum appliqued in lace and encrusted with seed pearls. The sleeves were fashioned with cathedral points, and the headdress was of organza petals and lily of the valley, with a double embroidered net, chapel length, veil.

The bride carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of pink roses and white heather. For something old the bride wore a crinoline, for something borrowed, the veil, and something blue, a garter.

BRIDE'S SISTER The matron of honor was a sister of the bride, Mrs. Neil Karan of Vernon, and the bridesmaid was Miss Diane Kretschmer of Rutland. They wore matching dresses of blue tulle with lace jackets. White shoes and white gloves were their accessories.

Bows of self material and blue veiling formed their headdresses, and carried bouquets of pink carnations made in a teardrop design. Telephone Company Official To Speak At Winfield Meet WINFIELD — Nine members of the monthly meeting of the Farmers' Institute at Memorial Hall with Wilf Gelhorn, president in the chair.

As a result of probing the possibility of having long distance telephone charges removed from calls between Winfield and Kelowna, and of limiting local calls to three minutes to prevent party lines being tied up with lengthy phone conversations, S. Muirhead of Vernon, superintendent of Okanagan Telephone Company, has agreed to speak on these questions at the next quarterly meeting of the chamber of commerce at Duck Lake Inn on March 18, at 8 p.m.

The Institute has been trying for over a year to get the highway department to improve the sharp turns on the Woods Lake road approaches to the Winfield packinghouse between Berry Rd. and Beaver Lake Rd. With the increasing truck traffic the problem is becoming more urgent and the Institute is stepping up the campaign to get some action from the dept. of highways.

A cheque was received from Oryama Community Club in payment of 1965 dumping privileges for Oryama householders at the Winfield Disposal grounds.

Red Cross Day Set March 14 Across Canada

Sunday, March 14 is Red Cross day, more than 800,000 bottles of blood and $2,500,000 every year.

March is Red Cross month. The campaign for funds has been started in Kelowna but to date no returns have been received. Wesley Manning, campaign chairman, said today.

We have asked everyone of service to the community and all denominations to remind their congregations of the many humanitarian services of the Red Cross organization in order to step up the campaign," said Mr. Manning.

The Canadian Red Cross provides assistance throughout the world. "Canada has been blessed with thousands of lakes, rivers and streams, a heritage that each of us can enjoy through beautiful recreation."

The Red Cross assists Canadians to enjoy our great outdoors through activities in water safety.

"Canada has many small communities which do not have the hospitals and treatment centres serving the majority of our population. These communities are served by Red Cross outpatient hospitals and Red Cross nursing stations."

"Once again, the Red Cross is appealing to the people in Kelowna and district, as well as those in all parts of Canada, to give generously to fundraisers who blood transfusion service when they call," said Mr. Manning.

Snow White Number Highlight For Children At Ice Frolics

The story of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs will be a featured attraction for children at the 16th Annual Ice Frolics at the Kelowna Memorial Arena Saturday, March 27.

The two hour show is being presented by the Kelowna Figure Skating club at 2 and 8 p.m. with about 250 skaters participating.

Miss Elsie Busch, club professional instructor, said this year's show will be in four main parts. "The Children's Hour, Country Hoedown, Music Hop and Dance Groups."

"The Children's Hour is the presentation of the complete Snow White fairy tale in five acts," she said. "It is performed by the junior skaters."

"We will have all the main characters. Snow White, the seven dwarfs, the wicked witch, Queen, Ladies - in - Waiting, Prince Charming and the hunter. Also including are the forest animals, bears, bunnies, squirrels, skunks and a chipmunk soloist."

"The woodland scene will have fairies, elves, flowers and birds. The ballroom scene will have a dance group performing as guests," she said.

Miss Busch does her own choreography and designs the costumes and dances. The costumes are given to mothers who cut patterns out of paper for other mothers to use as a guide for costumes. The children practice about six weeks prior to the performance.

COUNTRY HOEDOWN

The Country Hoedown section features a square dance, a soloist, cowboy and cowgirl. Miss Busch said.

"The Music Hop will include seven senior girls doing a modern dance on skates. There will be dance groups doing a Mambo, a blues precision number and the Charleston."

The program will have several guest artists. Fye Strutt and James Walters, of Vancouver, the 1964 B.C. senior pairs champions and Pam Wyles of Penikese, the 1965 "most artistic award" winner in the Okanagan-Mainline figure skating championships.

Also performing are Belva Neilson and Lynne Sawicki of Vernon, Okanagan senior ladies champions. Miss Busch said.

"The show will do a free-skating solo during the show."

More Than 500 People Attend "Sho-Bits '65" Presentation

More than 500 people attended the first in a series of annual drama productions at George Elliot secondary school in Winfield Saturday night.

The production "Sho-Bits '65" presented two plays, "The Shock of His Life," by Donald Payton and "The Sire de Maletroit's Door," by R. L. Stevenson plus several variety numbers.

"The Shock of His Life," was a comedy taking place in a modern-day living room depicting the many predicaments a family can encounter during a single day. The family receive a shock when they gain the impression the father is about to be sent to prison and the father thinks he's going to die.

"The Sire de Maletroit's Door" is a drama, an elderly woman in the French village of Chateau Landon in 1469. The play depicts scenes of her younger days.

Special numbers included eight girls doing a Charleston dance routine entitled "The Ole Black-bottom dancing."

Another musical number used a tape-recorded voice of Maurice Chevalier singing "Thank Heaven," with one student pantomiming the song to boys acting as "little girls."

The Sho-Bits special orchestra played six numbers during the evening including "Blame it on the Bossa Nova," "Skip to My Loo," "Jolly Little Jug," "Acapulco," "Four Pieces for Band" and "Curran Call Overture."

The proceeds from this drama will be used to pay for equipment, costumes and royalties for Sho-Bits and future presentations," said Ian Snett, a director for one of the plays.

"More Education" Needed In Schools

There is a need in B.C. schools for more and better balanced adult education programs, Dr. B. E. Wales told a meeting at the Kelowna Community College last Friday.

The meeting was sponsored by School District No. 23 in conjunction with education week.

"We are making tremendous progress at the present time," said Dr. Wales, principal of City College in Vancouver, "but we are not serving all the public."

"We need to provide a type of program which is available to everyone and design it so it will serve all purposes."

"Regional colleges, such as the one proposed for the Okanagan, are one way to ensure this end is reached. These colleges can provide programs of many types and requirements."

"Another way we can provide this service for education is adult education programs. There is such a program in Kelowna and residents here are to be recommended for their interest in it."

"There are a lot of educational needs we must attend to and there are opportunities to satisfy these needs right now," Dr. Wales said.

"We must take stock of our present programs, learning how to find, select and assess the knowledge available. This knowledge is accumulating extremely rapidly and we must learn how to handle the overload."

If we don't we probably won't be able to keep up with the fast changing world of today or adapt to its changing conditions."

NEEDS

We must also examine needs in terms of people. There is tremendous potential available and we must develop it."

Dr. Wales said there were three kinds of potential based on secondary education: higher education institutions such as universities and vocational schools and the intermediate or adult education.

"All levels are developing vocational or college courses in Wales told a meeting at Kelowna Community College last Friday."

"These courses do provide some of the needs but short courses frequently don't provide the full training for which we should be striving."

The provincial and federal governments have played an integral part in present progress and it is the responsibility of the community to assume the initiative to maintain this progress.

In addition to Dr. Wales and his wife, head teachers present included Mrs. Harold Sumkins, president of the PTA council; Mrs. Thomas Angus, representative of the C. D. Buckland, regional colleges, some vocational courses and adult education week committee and his wife, S. J. Gowland, director of adult education. George Barnes, representing the chamber and L. P. Decemay, principal of Kelowna secondary school.

Health Week Designed To Improve Standards

Well folks, National Health Week is with us once again. It is designed to make us health conscious and to promote good health amongst the people of Canada.

Nation-wide surveys have indicated that only about 25 per cent of adult Canadians enjoy a basic level of fitness, but the average teenage boy or girl is becoming more capable of tests of strength and endurance as our physical education programmes are up-graded and extended.

Conditions of allergic disorders, mental illness, diseases of the nervous system, heart disease, the common cold, and many others are increasing we are told, far out of proportion to the population explosion. Perhaps a sensible diet and a planned physical fitness programme would help to alleviate many of these problems.

There is no doubt about it, physical fitness does increase the enjoyment of living, our senses are keener and our food is more enjoyable. An improved level of fitness can increase our earning power. Fit people have more work energy, miss fewer days and stand the pressure of increased responsibility. Fitness means a longer working life and is the cheapest insurance you can buy because next to caution, fitness ranks high in the prevention of accidents.

People who exercise regularly as a general rule have perfectly functioning hearts, even in advanced years.

Health not only requires sound exercise, but also a nutrition and living programme, a sound reason for being well, a sense of purpose and an opportunity to contribute something of importance to others is vital to health.

Health perhaps is as unpredictable as tomorrow, but by using the knowledge of the past and the techniques of the present, the South Okanagan Union Board of Health is looking forward to your personal future. They are vitally concerned with the prevalence of preventable illness, and make every effort to control disease throughout the area in which they work. They do much towards the promotion of health and the postponement of untimely deaths, by promoting pasteurization of milk, fluoridation of drinking water, use of Salk and Sabin vaccines, immunization against diphtheria, smallpox, etc., and yes, they do advocate regular health check-ups for early discovery of cancer, heart disease, tuberculosis, diabetes, rheumatism and arthritis.

The Health League of Canada together with the Departments of Health and Education say please remember Canada's National Health Week, March 14-20th, 1965.

—L. A. N. Potterton, Chairman of South Okanagan Union Board of Health

Some Cheaters Caught

From The Printed Word:

While Prime Minister Pearson and other Canadians are concerned about maintaining high standards of integrity and conduct in government, people in the United States are concerned with another phase of a similar problem. Perhaps it is a more serious problem because most of the people involved south of the border are of college age. The U.S. Air Force Academy has a code whereby students cannot in honor cheat at examinations. The honor system was established quite a long time ago, and the origin may have been at West Point. But it is faltering in the Air Force. A number of cadets have been dismissed from and consequently disgraced the Academy. All over the country people are gravely concerned and are writing letters to editors.

Princeton, one of the most highly regarded of colleges, exacts a pledge, and each student inscribes on each paper, "I pledge my honor as a gentleman that during this examination I have neither given nor received assistance." A former naval officer rather complacently writes that in his day marks were made because they were deserved. There are no apologists in a group of eleven letter writers to one paper, but there is concern over the problem of the student who catches another student cheating and is in honor bound to tell on him. One writer from Illinois suggests that "17-year-olds and editorial writers" reveal the incongruities of applied morality in an immoral society.

Canadians are not so smug that they would be sure that there is no cheating in examinations in colleges, or even before the students reach college. There must be a strong temptation at times but it is highly probable that the professors and those who prepare papers are careful, most careful, to see that no candidate for the examination gets a look at the questions in advance. There are bound to be scandals, and the effort must ever remain to keep the opportunity for cheating at a minimum.

This is the age of violence and it also seems to be the age of lying and cheating. Probably the two go together.

Honesty and other forms of morality should be inculcated in the child at the mother's knee. If this ingrained habit of honesty is there when a child starts school there will be no need for police forces, courts, or jails.

Still Owe For Stove

From The Printed Word:

Noting that the Ottawa Government, for old age pensions and other purposes, is planning to spend tens (or is it hundreds?) of millions of dollars more, a casual observer of things governmental asks, "What are we going to do for money?"

Perhaps the answer to this question came from the late Jack Charlesworth, who overheard a hand-in-hand young couple devise a way for them to get something without spending the cash at once. The very sweet-looking young lady asked her handsome man, "Darling, do you think that if we missed a payment or two on the stove we could get a television?"

Canadians are young and sweet and lovely and they plan to look after the aged and aging whether or not the stove ever gets paid for.

Clatter of Construction Gear Replaces Whistles on Canal

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) Since mid-December when the last ship of the season passed through the Welland Canal, the echo of ship's whistles has been replaced by the clatter of heavy construction equipment.

Piledrivers, earth-movers, drills and men have been racing against the clock to complete work that can only be done while sections of the 27-mile waterway are drained.

By mid-March much of this winter activity will be silenced by a flood of water as the canal is prepared for the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Seaway April 1.

Construction emphasis will shift to earth excavation and preparations for another winter's work.

The canal, which links Lake Ontario and Lake Erie, bypassing Niagara Falls, is being modernized in a long-term $180,000,000 program that will ultimately provide twin locks for simultaneous up-and-down traffic.

The amount is $13,000,000 more than the whole canal cost when it was built 33 years ago. When twinning is completed in 1971, it will increase the canal's capacity by 60 per cent over what it was when the program was announced in 1933. And instead of taking 12 hours to make the trip, a ship may be expected to negotiate the canal in an average of seven hours.

On an average peak day last year, about 40 ships were locked through the system of eight locks which overcome the 327-foot difference in water level between Lake Erie and Lake Ontario.

Although much of the work being done now is just preparation for eventual twinning, ship-owners this year will notice changes in the appearance of the canal. The time saved may be only minutes but it will be significant in terms of a whole shipping season.

"In the first stage of the project we must make elaborate preparations to provide alternate means of protecting water levels," says William O'Neill, project director.

"Some channel improvements are being undertaken immediately because they offer some help to congested shipping. Another important aspect in these first years of the project is the modernization of existing locks."

In the northern 10-mile section, where the canal passes through St. Catharines and Thorold, seven locks overcome the greater part of the difference in the levels of the two lakes. Lock No. 8 at Port Colborne is a shallow lift-gate lock which adjusts to the fluctuating levels of Lake Erie.

THREE TWINNED
At a sharp rise in the Niagara escarpment, three of the locks are built in a flight and are already twinned, providing separate channels for upbound and downbound shipping. The other four locks are single and will remain in use as upbound locks with new locks to be built beside each one to provide the downbound traffic lane.

The canal's importance in the St. Lawrence Seaway system is indicated by the fact that cargoes carried through it last year were valued at nearly $5,000,000,000. Tonnage was 51,000,000, an increase of 24 per cent over 1963, and the number of vessel transits was up 700.

This meant congestion and waiting lines for ships wanting to enter the canal and also between locks. Among the winter work projects that will help ease congestion was the extension of two tie-up walls for waiting ships between locks 2 and 3, and the widening of a two-mile curve above Port Robinson.

During the cold weather, and continuing into summer, a section of wall on the west side of Port Weller Harbor is being straightened to eliminate a narrowing in the channel, making it 110 feet wider.

REMOVE PIER
At the upper end of Lock No. 7 along the escarpment, work began to install guard gates designed so they can be closed against the force of water. This is a two-year $1,400,000 job that, when completed before the 1968 winter season, will save as much as 20 minutes for some vessels.

In conjunction with work on the gates, the pier of an abandoned railway swing bridge in mid-channel has been removed. This makes the channel 210 feet wide. Formerly the pier divided the canal into two 80-foot-wide channels.

Tunnels under the canal at St. Catharines and Welland and Thorold will permit the removal of some bridges, and there are plans to replace the one remaining swing bridge, used by the New York Central Railroad in Welland, with a vertical lift bridge.

A key part of the program is scheduled for next winter when a start will be made on installing new gate-operating machinery. The big 200-ton gates will be vital to twin-lock construction.

At all single locks a control and bypass weir is located alongside the lock approximately where the new twin lock will be built. Only when the new gates are in operation can the bypass weir be altered for excavation work.

Without the gates there would be a danger of flooding not only the present lock system but the surrounding countryside as well.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 46 years old and have never been pregnant. I have never missed two monthly periods and want to know if there is any way I can tell whether it is the change of life or pregnancy. —R.T.

Most likely menopause, or change of life, but you can quickly find out. Ask your doctor for a pregnancy test. All you have to do is take him a urine sample, collected in a clean container in the morning and if there is any delay in getting it to your doctor) kept cold.

LOOKING BACK WITH OLD STAGER

Cold, Bitter Winter Hinders Journey

By ART GRAY

Disembarking at New York, the party travelled by train to Detroit, then by lake steamer to Sault Ste. Marie, and from there to the Red River Settlement by canoe and portage. There had been a severe winter, and a late spring and Lake Superior still had a lot of ice floating around. It was a cold and unpleasant journey over the divide and down to Fort Garry.

Lord Selkirk had founded the settlement there only 46 years before, and Palliser's comments on what he saw in July, 1857 are interesting. There were many signs of solid settlement, he said, with rich hay fields, fenced crop lands, homes built along the river bank and water-mills on small creeks. Some of the inhabitants of mixed blood preferred the excitement of the buffalo hunt to the humdrum tilling of the soil. "The indifference of these people is truly wonderful," he wrote. "They hunt for three months of the year and beg, borrow or starve the remaining nine months."

Most travellers through the west at that time, travelled the trail through Fort Ellice, the Cypress Hills, Ft. Carlton, along the North Saskatchewan to Ft. Edmonton and then through the Yellowhead Pass (the route the Overlanders took just five years later).

Palliser's course had to be more southerly, for one of his objectives was to establish the feasibility of a road, or railway, or both, through from Ft. Garry to the Pacific Coast, in closer proximity to the U.S. border. This international boundary was still being surveyed, with parties working from both east and west, with both U.S. and British survey parties.

The expedition was divided into two brigades, one with the carts and provisions following the Carlton Trail, while Palliser and his scientists and a small party struck west from Pembina, in the area of the still unmarked boundary. From time to time they would turn north and rejoin the main body at prearranged points. Palliser's progress on the maps shows a constant zig-zagging across the whole south land, much of it in areas never frequented by white men. Buffalo and other wild life provided much of their food, and the hunt was almost a daily feature of their progress.

In those days the land really belonged to the Indians. The Blackfoot confederacy, including the Blood, Sarcé and Peigan tribes, bitter enemies of the northern Crees, were the most predominant. There were Assiniboines or "Stonies," and then the Sioux hunting parties and war parties that roamed back and forth. They had some tense encounters, but avoided open conflict for the most part. They all suffered from lack of good horses, the severe winter having killed off so many.

Heading west the party encountered Turtle Mountain, the first natural feature marking the boundary. They crossed and recrossed the Souris River, and Palliser found valleys and sagebrush similar to the country he had noted on the Missouri. They went into winter quarters at Ft. Carlton, and moved north in October they noted the odd interconnection between the Quappelle and South Saskatchewan valleys, which the Indians call the "river that runs." At high water it flows east and west from swampy lakes at its source. The land formation indicated that at one time the South Saskatchewan flowed through to the Quappelle and the possibility of damming up the river at Elbow, to make it do this again was suggested, with a view to direct water travel to the Red River. Today there is a dam at Outlook not far from there, and another at Elbow to prevent the water going through to the Quappelle, except as irrigation.

In 1858 Palliser traversed southern areas along the Bow River, and penetrated the Rockies through Kanas Pass in August, returning the next month by the North Kootenay pass, just above the U.S. border, and south of Crown's Nest Pass, through which the railway now runs. The party spent the winter in Ft. Edmonton.

The following summer they went through the North Kootenay pass again, this time from east to west, and Hector, with part of the expedition forces, made independent forays through more northerly routes. Palliser reached Ft. Shepherd, on the Columbia River, believed to be in U.S. territory, but he correctly calculated it, by instrument, to be three-quarters of a mile inside British Columbia.

By September he was at Ft. Colville, Wash., and on the Kettle River he watched miners panning for gold. Going westward from Christina Lake he met members of the Royal Engineers, working on the boundary survey. From the present town of Midway to Grand Forks the Kettle River loops down into the U.S. past the town of Curlew.

Sending the pack horses and most of the party to the river route, Palliser and the rest climbed over the mountains, taking much the same route followed by the highway from Grand Forks through Greenwood to Midway today. Somewhere in the area of Rock Creek he came upon the camp of the Royal Engineers. He spent a happy day with them, visiting their observatory, and seeing the Zenith telescope used in laying down the boundary line.

It, Palliser convinced himself that the Hudson Bay Co. route over the mountains from Hope lay all in British territory, assuming that an all-land route from the Red River to the sea was feasible, close to the southern border of the British territories.

Palliser just missed visiting the Okanagan by a few short miles. Instead he went to the Columbia by steamer, and up to Victoria, where he was entertained by Governor Douglas, and then to the mainland where he met Col. Moody and Capt. Parsons of the Royal Engineers at New Westminster.

Back, eventually, in Britain, Palliser and his co-workers presented their report to the Royal Society. Containing a wealth of botanical, meteorological, and other scientific information, it also included observations on the natural land use, in considerable detail. These endorsed the North Saskatchewan and Red River areas as suited to settlement, but of South Saskatchewan and border territory in what is now Alberta, the reports could be summarized as saying "these areas lack water and timber, have limited rainfall making settlement difficult."

For reasons of state, and economics, the CPR struck right through this territory, instead of through the northern route and Yellowhead Pass, and the settlement built up first in the area that later was to become a dust bowl. The "Palliser Triangle" thus returned to haunt Canada's economy, and became the wedge that forced the first chink in the walls of the federal treasury, through which funds in provincial aid have been pouring in increasing volume, first through P.E.R.A., and now through "Atla" to all of Canada.

But what of John Palliser, and his companions? By the time the report was published by the Royal Society, the American Civil War had broken out, and Palliser, in search of adventure, was running the U.S. blockade with the schooner "Hoskford", and attending the great ball at Charleston, North Carolina.

Blackstone was off to China to explore the Southern Alps in New Zealand. Palliser himself lived "off" his three-year-and-ten, and died, Aug. 18, 1887, at his old home in Ireland.

ANN LANDERS

Children Inherit Hip And Bone Construction

Dear Ann Landers: We have two sons, 7 and 4 years of age. They both walk just like their father. Everyone thinks it is very rare because the walk is an unusual one — sort of a waddle, with toes pointed out. A friend of mine said, "I'll bet your husband is flattered that his sons have inherited his walk. It's always a compliment to a father when his sons want to be just like him."

I told her the boys are not imitating their father's walk — they inherited it. The same way they inherited his strong jaw and small, flat ears. She insisted I am wrong. Am I please print this letter because the loser takes the winner to lunch — OPAL AND GERT

Dear O and G: Children do not inherit "a manner of walking" in the same way they inherit curly hair or blue eyes. What they do inherit, however, is hip bone construction which produces the walk. So enjoy your lunch, dearie. You win the bet.

Dear Ann Landers: I need an ear this morning and my gripe is something you just do not talk over with your neighbors — so you're it. I've kept house (laundry and all), raised three boys and held down a job since the day I married. Suddenly I am 50 years old and so tired I could die.

So help me, I have never once said to my husband, "Come and help me with my work. I've been helping you support the family all these years." But I'm ready to say it now.

What bothers me most of all is that my husband is giving our teenage sons the idea that housework is strictly the wife's department. They refuse to do one thing to help me because they see how their father looks down his nose at dish-drying, carrying out the trash or even clearing the dishes off the table. This is a cry for help, Ann. Am I wrong? — FRAZZLED FRANCIS

Dear Francis: No, you are not wrong, but you're awfully late.

Women who work outside the home have every right to expect their husbands and children to give them a lift inside the home. The wife who brings in a cheque and cheerfully helps her husband with the dishes, the laundry, the cleaning — the whole bit.

Dear Ann Landers: Because so many women read and love your column I am writing in hope that a young woman I have blessed in my prayers every night for 25 years will read this.

We adopted our daughter from a home for unwed mothers 25 years ago. She has brought immeasurable joy to my husband and me. We have taught her to be proud of the woman who gave her up so she could have a normal life with us.

I am sure that through the years every young mother who makes this sacrifice suffers pangs of loneliness. She must also wonder where her child is, what she looks like — and if she is well and content. I know, Don't fight it. It's good training the natural mother of our daughter would be thrilled to know that her little girl is now happily married and has a little girl of her own.

So thank you, dear lady, for your unselfishness. We hope you have made a good life for yourself and that you have found peace and contentment. —GRATEFUL

Dear Grateful: Thank you for a beautiful letter. Confidential to NOBODY'S FOOT: your 20-page thesis on what's wrong with the world was a beaut. The world owes you nothing, Buddy Boy. It was here first.

Dear Ann Landers: Eighteen months ago I became engaged to Rex. We were both 21 and had gone together two years. Ten days after my parents announced our engagement at a lovely party, Rex told me the horrible news.

He had gotten an 18-year-old girl in trouble and would have to marry her. I never heard the girl's name before that night and here he had been seeing her on the sneak for over a year.

I was a college junior and had to drop out for the remainder of the semester because I was too ill to get out of bed. It took months of therapy before I was able to leave the house and face my friends. I'm proud to say I made a good adjustment and am now dating and having a good time.

Last night Rex called and begged me to meet him at a cafe. He sounded very upset so I agreed. He tells me he hates his wife and he's not sure the baby is his. He wants to get a divorce and marry me. He says life isn't worth living and he'll take his own life if I don't take him back.

I loved him once but now I'm confused and afraid to become involved. Please help me. — ANNAMARIE

Dear A: This character is poison. He is also married and a father. Tell him to stay away from you and to work out his problems as best he can. You owe him nothing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 14 years old (a boy) with a problem that none of my friends seem to have.

My Dad is always asking me to call up certain business people on the telephone. I'm supposed to look up the number, get the party on the line, then call him. Sometimes I feel like a jerk because I can't think of anything to say.

Last night I told my Dad I didn't want to make the calls any more and he said, "I don't care whether you want to or not, I do plenty of things I don't want to do. This won't kill you."

How about it? Is my father fair? — RATTLED ROBERT

Dear Rattled: Yes, he's fair. It's a joy (and sometimes a shock) to encounter a teenager who can speak unemotionally and intelligently to an adult he knows much less a stranger. Don't fight it. It's good training

New Members Are Invited To Hear College Singers

Kelowna music lovers will be interested to learn that the Kelowna Overture Concerts are offering free admission to the final concert of this series to all those buying memberships for the coming year. New memberships may be purchased before the concert at the Peter and Wendy Shop or at the door.

The concert that the new members will be privileged to hear will be given by the Central College Singers from Ellensburg, Washington, who will appear at the Kelowna Community Theatre on Friday, March 19, at 8:15 p.m. under the direction of Wayne S. Hertz.

The sixty voice group is carefully selected by conductor Hertz from more than 150 candidates, all of whom are students of the Central Washington State College, each fall. They will present a varied program of contemporary and traditional vocal music in both light and serious veins, and in addition to the vocal group, a full brass ensemble accompanying the choir during portions of the program. While this is the Central College Singers first major tour of Canada, it is widely known throughout the Northwest U.S.A. and has performed at a number of musical functions of importance there. The choir dazzled listeners at the annual Rose Festival in Portland, Oregon last spring as it shared the spotlight with popular singer Pat Boone. Many of the young vocalists with the group have earned valuable scholarships from various musical organizations, including the Metropolitan Opera Company since joining the Central Singers and studying under Dr. Hertz.

The group has received high acclaim from reviewers who have been especially impressed with the Choir's diction, tonal quality and rich interpretations. Their Canadian tour includes performances in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

The executive of Kelowna Overture Concerts are already planning the entertainment for the coming year and have fastidiously booked the Jassan Ensemble featuring Jan Rubes and Ilona Kombrink, soprano, with a string quartet conducted by Arthur Polson, and a company of seven. The program will include miniature opera, show tunes from Broadway and a vocal recital accompanied by the instruments.

AROUND TOWN

The Ladies' Section of the Kelowna Golf and Country Club is holding a "Get Acquainted Coffee Party" at the Clubhouse on Thursday morning, March 18, and the executive would like to see as many members there as possible, particularly new members who will be cordially welcomed by the president, Mrs. J. A. Finucane, and the captain, Mrs. R. J. Bailey. Any member who has not been contacted about the party should get in touch with the convener, Mrs. H. N. Curtis. Don't miss this opportunity to get acquainted with the new members.

Mrs. E. A. Campbell returned this week from a month's holiday enjoyed on the Isle of Maui and at Waikiki.

Spending a few days in Kelowna this week as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jensen has been former Kelownian Michael Hall of Los Angeles. He was here to visit his mother, Mrs. Hilda Hall, who is a resident of Oak Lodge and has been seriously ill.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Richardson will be sorry to hear that they are leaving Kelowna at the end of March to take up residence in Victoria.

A most enjoyable reception was held in the Fellowship Building following the induction service for Rev. Stanley Thompson at St. David's Presbyterian Church this week. Refreshments were supplied by members of the Ladies' Guild convened by the president, Mrs. R. Buchanan. Mrs. A. B. Clark and Mrs. C. Nichol presided at the urns, and ladies of the Fellowship acted as servitors.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Bury of the Kelowna are receiving congratulations on the birth of a grandson, Lorne Allan, born to their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Bury of North Surrey, B.C. in the Grace Hospital, Vancouver, on March 9.

Mrs. Norman Douglas Fredrick, the former Jo Anne Christine Macdonald, a recent bride, was surprised with a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Fredrick, St. Paul St. on Tuesday. The room was charmingly decorated with wedding bells and pink and white streamers, and the decorated bride's cake centering the lace covered table was surrounded with ivy and spring flowers, and was flanked with candles in silver candlesticks. Some 16 guests attended the shower including the mother of the bride, Mrs. J. Macdonald, and groom's mother, Mrs. N. Fredrick. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Larry Ernie and Miss Shealagh Macdonald, sister of the bride.

Constable Ronald Cooper of the RCMP paid an unexpected visit to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carswell on his way back to Cloverdale, B.C. where he is stationed at present. Constable Cooper was a former pupil of Mr. Carswell.

The East Kelowna School held Open House on Monday, March 8, and the visiting parents enjoyed meeting the teachers and were very interested in the display of the children's work. Refreshments were served by members of the PTA.

Kelowna Stagettes Plan Activities

Miss Alice Moffat, the vice president, represented the Kelowna Stagette Club at the meeting held on March 5 regarding National Co-operation Year which the City of Kelowna is planning with the City of Riohamba in Ecuador, South America.

Stagette Club members are volunteering their services to the Sull Waters Private Hospital on Saturday afternoons to visit and assist the patients in any way possible.

Members are looking forward to a conducted tour of the Vocational School in April and a Rummage Sale is being planned for September 18 to be held in the Royal Canadian Legion Hall.

At the last meeting an extensive wardrobe was assembled for the Barbie and Ken dolls which the Stagettes plan on using as a fund raising project.

The next meeting will be held on March 22 at the home of Mrs. Marian Materi with Miss Gwen Simkins acting as hostess.

Medical Group Aims At Safety

OTTAWA (CP)—The highway safety committee of the Canadian Medical Association has come up with several recommendations to cut the accident toll on Canada's roads.

The committee, after a day-long meeting here, approved a report to the CMA listing these points:

Better ambulances, equipment and trained attendants; medical fitness tests for prospective drivers before licences are issued; more legislation to curb use of alcohol; seat belts in all autos and nationwide high school driver education programs; establishment of a traffic injuries research foundation in Canada.

Winnipeg Man Killed By Bandit

BANGKOK (CP)—John Graham McLeod, 29, of Winnipeg, was shot and killed Thursday in Thailand's Ayutthaya province. McLeod was travelling on a bus which was held up by 11 well-armed bandits about 50 miles north of here. Sketchy reports said he swung at one armed robber and was shot through the head.

A British embassy spokesman, who identified the victim, said a Vancouver man, Garry James Thorleifer Gregory, was riding with McLeod on the bus. They had been on the way from Chiangmai to Bangkok when the bus was waylaid.

The same day, a Thai woman truck owner was killed in Lopburi province when she used her pistol to shoot it out with five armed highway robbers.

Oak Bay, Alberni In Basketball Final

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. boys high school basketball final tonight will be a rematch of the Vancouver Island final earlier this month.

Oak Bay will go against Alberni, with Oak Bay declared the favorite by experts.

Oak Bay entered the final by defeating Clearbrook 54-33. Alberni edged Burnaby 44-43 in a thriller before 3,500 spectators.

Meanwhile, in consolation round play there were these scores: North Vancouver 28, Prince Rupert 31; Abbotsford 30, Vancouver Westminster 39; North Surrey 72, Kamloops 58; Vancouver Gladstone 47, Trail 33.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW

Congenial personal relationships will mark this day, with the result that any group activity should prove highly enjoyable. Also favored: romance, travel and creative pursuits.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY

If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates a highly satisfactory year, with occupational affairs advancing in late April and early May, in September, late December and January. And, where financial matters are concerned, you can expect many gains—most likely during the balance of this month, in early May, all of July, mid-September, mid-October and next January. Avoid speculation in late May, early June and the period between mid-November and mid-October, however.

In your personal life, it's a different and more interesting story. Best periods for romance will occur in late June, all of July and late September. The matrimonially-minded could wend their way to the altar during any of these cycles with assurance of stellar blessing. And, if travel's on your mind, the months of July and September should be highly propitious. Social and domestic interests will be happily influenced for most of the year ahead.

A child born on this day will be endowed with a lovable personality but will have to curb tendencies toward excessive gambling.

THE DAY AFTER TOMORROW

Monday will be one of those days in which "to expect the unexpected." Many changes are possible—in either your personal or business life—but take all in stride. They should prove beneficial in the long run.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY

If Monday is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that it would be advisable to take advantage of all possibilities for advancing your job status during the next three weeks, since your efforts during this period should bring some gratifying recognition in late April and early May. Next good periods: September, December and January. Biscuit matters show signs of fine progress during the balance of this month, in early May, all of July, mid-September, mid-October and next January. Be conservative in intervening months, however.

Romance, travel and happy family and social relationships should enliven most of the year, with the accent on sentimental matters in late June, all of July and late September; on travel and social activities between May and September, in December and January.

A child born on this day will be sensitive and compassionate, and will loathe injustice of any kind.

Soviets Reject China's Protest

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has rejected China's protest during a demonstration that Chinese students were brutally beaten by Soviet militia at the U.S. Embassy.

A spokesman for the Soviet foreign ministry broke a five-day silence on the Chinese protest to acknowledge it had been received. He said Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko orally rejected it on the spot.

The protest contained a stiff Chinese demand for a Soviet apology.

Chinese students at Moscow University and other schools have been passing the word they would be called home if the Soviet Union did not admit its police and troops were brutal, informed sources said.

Girl Hoopsters In Final Round

VANCOUVER (CP)—The well known combination of Salmon Arm and Kamloops were regarded as the favorites Friday as play started in the championship round of the B.C. high school girls basketball tournament.

The two teams have swapped the championship back and forth in recent years with Kamloops winning last year's tournament. They and Vancouver Winston Churchill entered the double knockout championship round after being undefeated in three games each in round robin play.

In the championship round with them are Trail (Cranbrook) and North Surrey who had one loss each in round robin play.

In first games of the round Friday night, Salmon Arm defeated Trail 28-21 and North Surrey beat Cranbrook 22-19.

In the consolation round are Victoria, Oak Bay, Vancouver John Oliver, Fort St. John, Clearbrook and Terrace. They had two or more losses in the round robin.

LOBSTERS LESS

HALIFAX (CP)—Lobster catch in the Maritimes in 1964 dropped some 1,750,000 pounds but the value of landed lobsters to fishermen showed an increase of more than $2,500,000 compared with 1963 figures. Lobster prices to fishermen hit record highs last year.

Opening lead — queen of spades.

When declarer goes down in a contract he could have made, it is usually because he did not know how the defenders' cards were distributed. This problem of figuring out how the adverse cards are divided usually represents the most important single element of a declarer's skill.

In today's hand it is not really difficult to make 12 tricks if you ace the opponents' cards. The trick is to make them without this advantage.

Actually the contract should be made with or without the benefit of seeing the East-West cards. Careful play will do the job.

South wins the spade lead in dummy and clearly must tackle trumps at once. Common prudence dictates that he should lead the ace of diamonds first, not a low one to the queen.

The missing diamonds are the J-10-5-2. If they are divided 2-3 or 3-1, either diamond play would work out all right, but if they are divided 4-0, only the ace is in the right play. This guards against East's having four trumps; if West has four trumps, not even a doctor can help.

When West shows out, declarer continues the suit, winning the ten with the queen. A heart to the queen is followed by another diamond, South taking the five with the seven and continuing with the king.

The king of hearts followed by the ace—in the hope of finding a 3-3 division—then reveals that the contract depends on whether two club losers can be avoided. If the clubs are divided 3-2, there is no possible difficulty, so the assumption is made that they are divided 4-1.

East cannot have four clubs because West would then have had one club, no diamonds, two hearts, and hence ten spades—impossible on the bidding. Accordingly, West is credited with four clubs.

On this basis, declarer leads a low club to the ace, catching the ten. He then plays a club towards the K-8-5. Regardless of what West does, he makes only one club trick.

NEW HOUSE DESIGN

This three bedroom bungalow by architect B. L. Peterson of Victoria is designed to take advantage of a sloping site so that a proposed playroom with a fireplace, a washroom, as well as utility and storage facilities can be used to greatest advantage in the basement. An access directly from the outside adds to the convenience of the lower floor level arrangement. The arrangement of carpet and covered walks adds greatly to the exterior appearance of the house. Within there is excellent separation of the living, working and bedroom areas. The living room faces to the rear of the lot and a balcony is situated next to the kitchen and dining room. For best dining this house should face east. The floor area is 1,255 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 36 feet four inches by 47 feet four inches. Working drawings for this house known as Design 2324, can be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

HELPFUL HINTS ABOUT YOUR HOME

New Opera Touring Company Formed At Metropolitan

NEW YORK (CP)—Within the weathered walls of the Metropolitan Opera House a new touring company has been born, promising Canadians more operatic entertainment.

Creation of the new company is part of a rejuvenation process taking place at the Metropolitan Opera which will soon vacate the old quarters it has occupied since 1883 in favor of the luxurious Lincoln Centre.

Rudolf Bing, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, explained at a press conference of the National Company will draw its talent almost entirely from American and Canadian singers.

He said the new company was set up as a branch of the Metropolitan Opera, co-sponsored by the John F. Kennedy Centre for the Performing Arts to serve as a full-time repertory company which will tour to cities in the United States and Canada in its first season of operation.

The inaugural season begins this fall with the Canadian tour opening in Ottawa Dec. 5. The company will visit Montreal and Toronto before the end of the year and between March 18 and March 27 of 1966 it will perform in Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary and Winnipeg.

The new company will "set new standards in opera," said Bing, stimulating local opera companies across the United States and Canada to new heights.

He predicted cities now with their own opera companies will find added interest in opera because of the tours and that where there are no local opera groups, new companies will be formed.

"Until now there has been no such thing in the United States as a repertory opera company in the manner of the Old Vic or the early days of Glyndebourne," he said. He added: "A company training, rehearsing and performing together constantly can hone its talents to a razor's edge of sharpness."

"To this end we have sought out for the National Company some of the greatest directorial talents in the theatre and are providing them with that rarest of operatic luxuries, almost unlimited rehearsal time."

"They will have the opportunity to achieve productions of great depth and excellence," Singer Rose Stevens and Michael Manuel, co-general managers of the National Company, stressed that the cast will consist of performers who are glamorous as well as top-notch singers.

Miss Stevens said the company already has signed all 26 principal singers—including two Canadians—and the remainder of the 225-member cast will soon be signed.

The Canadians are Huguette Turenne, a mezzo-soprano from Montreal, and Peter Van Ghelst, a Dutch-born bass who has sung with the Vancouver Opera Association in 1960 and with the Canadian Opera Company since then.

Thirty-two of the 160 performances in the 15-week inaugural season will be to the seven Canadian cities. Four operas will be performed — Carmen, Madame Butterfly, Cinderella and Samson.

Jerome Shore of Winnipeg, president of Opera Tours Limited, which is sponsoring the Canadian tour, said the Canadian tour is expected to include more cities in a few years as facilities to perform opera are completed.

TINY PLOT BIG DEAL

CRESTON (CP)—City council Friday was negotiating the purchase of a strip of land 4 1/2 ft of an inch wide owned by C.W. Perry. Council started negotiations after the Nelson land registry office reported the land had been duly registered but could not be sold privately because it lacks access. The office said council would have to pass a bylaw consolidating the land in property purchase negotiations currently underway with Mr. Perry.

HINTS TO DO-IT-NOW BUFFS

By ROGER C. WHITMAN
WORN SPOTS ON PORCELAIN
QUESTION: I have white porcelain kitchen cupboards. The one above my stove got so spotted from frying grease splatters. I tried to wash it with a new household cleaner. It took off some of the finish and it's very dull now. How can I get it to shine again?

ANSWER: Try wiping the surface with a cream, clean-up was made by a nationally known manufacturer. Dullness may be due to a residue from the cleaner, and not actual wearing of the finish. If the finish is actually worn off, touch up dented areas with porcelain glass (available paint, hardware and housewares dealers) according to label instructions; or apply a white appliance enamel in aerosol form.

PATCHING CARPETING
QUESTION: Our living room carpeting is very badly worn in spots. We would like to repair these areas with the matching carpeting from the dining room. How do we do it? Also, padding has to be replaced in one place. Does this get sewn in or nailed down?

ANSWER: For best results, I recommend having professional do repair job. For do-it-yourself: Cut out worn area, being sure to have sharp, clean edges; then cut patch exactly to fit, being careful that pile will fit into carpeting in same direction. Turn carpeting upside down, and fit patch into place. Then use "press on" carpet binding or tape (available variety and housewares stores) of matching color to secure the patch to the carpeting. If padding is not nailed down, best to sew replacement in; if padded of rubber, use rubber cement to fasten it.

STAIN ON CEMENT PORCH
QUESTION: There are dark brown and black stains on my cement porch. Is there some way I can get them off?

ANSWER: Scrub the cement surface with a strong, hot solution of washing soda or trisodium phosphate (keep solution away from painted surfaces as it will soften the paint). Then rinse off with clear water. To remove any stubborn stains, the following is usually successful, (if you can avoid traffic over the porch overnight): Wet the cement surface, then sprinkle it with dry sal soda concentrated and allow to remain overnight. Then scrub with a stiff-bristled brush and more sal soda. Rinse off with clear water. For specific types of stains, I suggest sending postcard to Portland Cement Association, 33 W. Grand Ave., Chicago 18, for copy of "How To Remove Stains From Concrete."

CLEANING PARCHMENT
QUESTION: I have two lamp shades that are soiled. One is pigskin and one is parchment. How can I clean these?

ANSWER: First remove dust from the surface with a vacuum cleaner or soft cloth. To clean the parchment shade, wash with a cloth or sponge, dampened with a mild soap or detergent solution, then remove cleaning solution with cloth and clean water. Wipe dry. Or use milk to clean the surface. Commercial wallpaper cleaner can also be used.

For cleaning pigskin, use a leather-cleaner and conditioner, available in many housewares and variety stores; follow label instructions. Or wipe surface with a damp cloth and saddle soap, following directions on the soap.

Building Your House Hard Work

Can you act as your own contractor in building a house? The answer is yes but it calls for a lot of hard work, time and a good knowledge of the building industry. You would have to make your own arrangements for purchase and delivery of materials. You would also have to hire sub-contractors.

The responsibility for having sewers, water and hydro connected would be right in your lap. You would have to handle your own accounting. It can be a complicated business. Unless you figure you can handle it properly, you might just as well employ a reputable contractor and let him build for you.

If your main aim is to cut costs, you can probably work out some arrangement with a contractor to get credit for any work you put into the house yourself. This is a matter to take up with the contractor before you sign the contract.

Actor Who Portrays Pope Pius XII Hopes Few Catholics See Play

TORONTO (CP)—Leo Ciceri, an hour of mainly polite comment and questioning. Mr. Ciceri was asked how he, as a Montrealese and Catholic, would feel about the former pope in predominantly Catholic Montreal.

"Hopefully," Mr. Ciceri replied, "there is a very small English-speaking Catholic group in Montreal."

The Crest production of the play, which has been criticized as anti-Catholic, is completing a sell-out month here before moving to the Montreal Forum Feb. 22-23 and then to Ottawa Feb. 25-26. Ref. Hochstadt's play centres on a conflict arising from the Pope's failure to speak out clearly against the Nazi slaughter of the Jews during the Second World War.

Director Davis and the leading actors agreed, however, in seeing the play's main message as an indictment of mankind in general for permitting such atrocities, rather than a mere diatribe against Pope Pius and the Catholic Church.

Mr. Davis said Hochstadt's original German version tended to portray the pope as an intruder, but the Crest production attempts to show that the issue was more complex — for the sake of good drama as well as for a more accurate version of history.

But Mr. Burton won the biggest round of applause when he commented that while most people in life are grey, rather than black and white, there comes a time—and I think this was one—when the issue is so big it becomes black and white."

Visiting Missionaries To Lecture in Okanagan

Seven missionary men from special music, color slides and films and messages from the Latin America, South Africa, India, and other parts of the world will be visiting Kelowna during the 16th annual Okanagan Missionary Conference, March 14-21, 1965, at the Okanagan Missionary Conference Centre, 1000-10th St. N., Kelowna.

Mr. Bradley, president of the Kelowna and District Missionary Association, sponsors of the conference, said the men will travel to different centres each night, addressing people from Salmon Arm to Osoyoos.

"In Kelowna, meetings will be held in the Evangelical Tabernacle, Church of Christ, and the United Church of Canada, March 14 to 20, inclusive, at 7:30 p.m. The Sunday rallies March 14 and 21 will be held at 3 p.m."

SPECIAL PROGRAM

The program for the meetings and the rallies include:

Folk Music Theme Of Meet Sunday Night

"What's worship for anyway?" The only way we can find out is to experiment ourselves. That was the thinking that led the Youth Fellowship of the United Church of Canada to experiment. One of the results will be the service in First United Church, Kelowna, at 7 p.m. on Sunday, March 14.

People of all ages are invited. "The Christian Life in Folk Music and Verse" is the theme, to be led by a choir of 40 voices and readers.

Specially invited H. C. and other youth groups, from Salmon Arm to Penticton, will attend and remain afterwards in the hall for a Hootenay, in which the Fortune Singers of Summerland, and the Wimmen of Winfield are to take part.

Berton Included In Group Writing United Church Booklet

TORONTO (CP)—Six Canadian journalists and three United Church clergymen, including two pastors, have criticized the United Church of Canada in a booklet to be distributed to book stores this week.

The 61-page booklet, Why the Sea is Boiling Hot, is described as a symposium on the church and the world, and was written at the request of the United Church Board of Evangelism and Social Service.

Among the authors is Pierre Berton, whose controversial book, The Comfortable Few, written as a Lenten study for the Anglican Church of Canada, has sold more than 100,000 copies in the United Church booklet. Mr. Berton has written an unflattering commentary on the organized church.

Other contributors are Michael Barkway of Montreal, editor and publisher of The Financial Times of Canada, who writes about church finances; Arnold Edinborough of Toronto, editor and publisher of Saturday Night, who gives a layman's opinion of what the clergy should be like; June Callwood, a Toronto freelance writer, who fires a blistering attack on local congregational activities; Joan Hollobon, a reporter with the Toronto Globe and Mail, whose commentary on ecclesiastical language is both humorous and poignant; and Eric Nicol, of Vancouver, free lance writer who gives an agnostic's analysis of the modern church.

OPEN TO PUBLIC

"The conference is open to the public and anyone is welcome to attend," Mr. Bradley said. "Rev. E. A. Domelj, chairman of the missionary conference in Kelowna said Mr. Hughes is a representative of the Africa Evangelical Fellowship with much experience in the missionary work field."

Mr. Thompson was a pastor in Toronto and in early 1959 he joined the Latin American mission in Costa Rica. Over the past 15 years he has served as missionary, field director in Colombia, home director in United States and as evangelist in many Latin American countries.

"He is now in charge of the mission's work in Canada," Mr. Ratliff has been a missionary for many years in Nigeria, the Sudan and Ethiopia. He is now Pacific coast departmental secretary for the mission.

"Mr. Jones went to India from North Wales in 1936, under the Ceylon and India general mission after training at Bible Training Institute, Glasgow."

"In 1942 he was engaged in the work of the mission in the populous Indo-gangetic plain among Hindus and Muslims."

"Mr. Frewing went to Bolivia in 1939 under the Evangelical Union of South America. In 1944 he went to the eastern lowlands of Bolivia to Cariri, a town of 7,000 people."

"Mr. Faulkner left New Westminster in early 1936 under the Africa Inland Mission."

"Mr. Sadlier entered the valley of his tribe of the Dni people in West Iran in 1959 with his wife and another couple. The tribe had never seen a white man before. Ten of the tribesmen have become missionaries," Mr. Domelj said.

CORN POTENTIAL

MORDEN, Man. (CP)—Mantoba has a potential corn acreage of 1,000,000 acres which could bring a return of more than $8,000,000 annually, says Dr. Vernon G. MacKay of the Morden experimental farm. He says farmers in the province now produce about 45,000 acres of corn annually but a major distiller, for one, would like to see an increase in production. He says he's conducting experiments with one variety that produces 75 bushels an acre.

Minister Complains Church Losing Ground in Large Cities

TORONTO (CP)—The United Church of Canada is "losing ground steadily" in midtown and downtown areas of large cities, Rev. Stewart Crysdale of Toronto said today.

Reporting to the church's Board of Evangelism and Social Service, Mr. Crysdale said the church's answer to the problem of dwindling congregations in some areas of cities may be the "house church."

A house church comprises a group of people in a block or neighborhood who meet in each other's homes to share common problems and convictions. Study and worship are elements of the program.

Mr. Crysdale, an assistant board secretary, said the United Church will publish next month results of a survey of clergymen, church members and adherents showing the decline of the church in midtown and downtown areas.

Mr. Crysdale's report was presented to the press before publication.

In reports presented Tuesday, Rev. Robert Christie of Vancouver, associate board secretary, said critics both inside and outside the church are "leading us to a reassessment and rededication of our true spiritual mission to men everywhere."

Rev. G. B. Mather, assistant board secretary from Saskatoon said Canadians find it easy to deplore racial injustice elsewhere in the world "but we understand too little of the plight of Indian people within our own borders."

PETER'S PATER

with PETER MUNOZ

There has been quite a hue and cry throughout most of the country over the failure of Canada to obtain the 1987 world hockey championships. Critics have leveled their blasts mainly against the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for their poor presentation.

And poor it was. They only wanted to have the top A teams play here and the B clubs play in Kelowna. Despite a Winnipeg offer to hold the B tournament, providing some of the more popular A games were directed to the Manitoba city from Toronto and Montreal. Apparently, the CAHA didn't use that pitch. They stuck to their original proposal for the A section only, as a matter of fact, and to the top three European teams to help the Canadian government save face. This would prevent the government from having to face East Germany. . . . They wound up with nothing.

Now is as good a time as any to fire a broadside at the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association and their backward thinking on officiating playoff hockey games. This body insists on using the outdated two referee system.

The recent Kelowna-Trail junior series played in Trail offered plenty of evidence to cast doubts on the validity of the two-man system. In the first game alone, no less than five officials were called but were missed and perhaps worst of all most of the load was shouldered by one referee.

In a pre-game meeting with coaches and league and other officials, the two referees working the series agreed to call the play on-side, if a defensive player behind the centre red line is preceded across the centre line by the puck and he touches it first down the ice. Out on the ice they called three back when Kelowna players beat the opposition to an end pack, even though they were well on their side of the centre line when the puck crossed it on its flight down the ice.

On another occasion a Smoke was trapped in the Kelowna zone when the puck was fired deep into the zone by a teammate and it wasn't called. Another time Trail was awarded a penalty and the puck was faced off in the Kelowna zone when play resumed, when it should have been faced in the neutral zone.

These were the glaring, the obvious, goofs, the borderline or closer ones can always occur and be missed even with one referee and two linesmen. Sometimes even an obvious one can be missed under the three-man system too, but not to the same degree.

But the CAHA insists on using the outmoded setup in areas under its jurisdiction. When the B.C. junior champions meet the Saskatchewan champs, officiating comes under the jurisdiction of the CAHA and then the one ref, two linesmen system is in effect. At least it was when Kamloops met the Edmonton Oil Kings in last year's playdowns.

Why the B.C. body doesn't update itself is anyone's guess. All the top top leagues use one and two. The Saskatchewan junior and other junior loops use it. Some offer the argument that four eyes are better than two, in the penalty area. True if they used all four, but often two remain closed.

Often one man calls most of the penalties, as in the Trail series and also in the Saturday night senior game at Trail. Except in rare instances, you'll find an uneven distribution of the work load. Also a man will hesitate to call an infraction he feels was rightfully the other fellow's call. He doesn't know whether his partner missed it or whether he saw it differently. It may cast doubts in his mind, being further away from the play, perhaps it wasn't at all what he thought. And so he may keep hesitating, to keep peace and unity in the family and this is essential in officiating.

The three men out there are far superior. They won't miss as many off-sides and these can be every bit as important—in some instances—as missed penalties. The lone referee can devote his full-time to watching for fouls and if he sees one he'll not hesitate to call it. . . . Then too, six eyes are better than four!

Ahearne "Wiels" Big Stick

Canadian Press Sports Editor

John Francis (Bunny) Ahearne is a twinkling-eyed, raspy-voiced, entertaining, and a renowned lobbyist. It was a tip of things to last, a master of the double-talk, come and iron-man. Bunny's a connoisseur of good food and prediction came true this week when the HIEF congress voted, hand and whip, Canadian hockey officials into line.

This chubby Irishman, with a pronounced British accent, was a prominent figure at the London more than 40 of his 64 European countries in the tech years, has been battling Canada and expects them to support him officials verbally and with your club. The area then was his fists and boots, since the CAHA would invade in 1930s. And there is no record of the top right.

Then the CAHA cut the last Jimmy played a meeting the business since he was secretary of the British Ice Hockey Association and European rep. of having to reform admission to representative of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Now from a country not recognized as president of the all-powerful International Ice Hockey Federation, he ends the time.

And when he calls it, people mean it. He's the Canadian had better pay attention because countries and the CAHA didn't he's invariably correct.

Last week in Tampere, Finland, for instance, he said Canada didn't have "a chance" of staging the 1987 world hockey tournament. That wasn't a pop-off. It was a tip of things to last, a master of the double-talk, come and iron-man. Bunny's a connoisseur of good food and prediction came true this week when the HIEF congress voted, hand and whip, Canadian hockey officials into line.

In effect, Bunny was telling the CAHA's govt. men at Tampere that you can't kick right when Bunny was minister of Britain's team which beat Canada 2-1 and won the gold medal. It was Bunny had Scottish-born Jimmy Foster, who learned his hockey in Canada, in the nets and then Jimmy played a meeting the business since he was secretary of the British Ice Hockey Association and European rep. of having to reform admission to representative of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Now from a country not recognized as president of the all-powerful International Ice Hockey Federation, he ends the time.

Keeping the East Germany out of Canada would have meant a loss of the Canadian hockey team. The CAHA didn't want to risk it.

Then, he started lobbying. He's a later, he chuckled when the subject came up. "It was easy," he recalled. "I'm Ontario. Bunny was there, the meeting open to questions to his usual talkative self, and all there were none.

In the light of this, CAHA officials and others had no valid reason to blame Bunny, even though he undoubtedly advised his European friends in hotel room talks to forget about Canada.

The Europeans do what they say, and for good reason. They, and long-memoried Canadians recall the 1936 Olympics in Garmisch, Germany, when Canada's team which beat Canada 2-1 and won the gold medal. It was Bunny had Scottish-born Jimmy Foster, who learned his hockey in Canada, in the nets and then Jimmy played a meeting the business since he was secretary of the British Ice Hockey Association and European rep. of having to reform admission to representative of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. vote with me against the second game and I'd get them some exhibition games with Canadian teams in the future. That did it. There was no second game and we stole the gold medal.

Of course, Bunny buttered his bread on both sides. As a travel agent, he arranged Canadian tours, got his commission, set up teams in his sister's South Kensington Hotel in London and was battling with the Canadians about expense and other financial arrangements.

The night after the 1932 Winter Games ended in Oslo, Bunny got into a fight with Doug Grier, a New Westminster, B.C., then CAHA president, over finances. They traded punches in a hotel lobby. The fight continued up the stairs and ended with Ahearne planting a boot in Grier's stomach.

That said, the CAHA, was to be the end of Bunny's term as European representative. The 1932 CAHA annual meeting was held at Minaki Lodge in Ontario, where Ahearne effectively squelched delegates by throwing them out of the meeting.
